Charge Marine Leader Drinking

Inquiry Group Urges Trial by Court Martial

Commandant Pate Orders Shakeup At Marine Base

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Marine Corps charged today that Staff Sgt. Matthew C. McKeon was "under the influence" of vodka when he led six Marine recruits to their deaths on a disciplinary night march at Parris Island, S. C., April 8.

A court of inquiry formally recommended the 31-year-old sergeant from Worcester, Mass., be tried by general court-martial on charges of manslaughter, "cruelty" to recruits, "disobeying" orders, and bringing discredit to the armed services.

The recommendation for a court martial must be approved by Navy Secretary Charles S. Thomas. Conviction for manslaughter carries a maximum penalty of dishonorable discharge and 10 years in prison. The other charges carry lesser penalties ranging from one month to two years at hard labor.

Orders a Shakeup

Gen. Randolph McCall Pate, commandant of the Marine Corps, announced that he also is taking these actions in the aftermath of the "death march" that shocked the nation:

1. Maj. Gen. J. C. Burger will be relieved as commanding general of the Parris Island Marine Base, and transferred to command the Marine barracks at Camp Lejeune, N. C., a post of comparable importance.

2. A sweeping shakeup has been ordered of the entire recruit training system at the two Marine "boot camps" at Parris Island and San Diego, Calif., to make sure all forms of "hazing" and un-American types of punishment are "absolutely eliminated."

The court of inquiry also recommended "appropriate disciplinary action" against two sergeants — T.Sgt. Elwyn B. Scarborough and Sgt. Richard J. King—for taking part in the vodka drinking which preceded the fateful night march into the swirling waters of Ribbon Creek where the six recruits drowned.

"Unknown Quantity of Vodka"

The court of inquiry found that McKeon "drank an unknown quantity of vodka during the morning, afternoon, and early evening" on April 8.

In the afternoon, he told the recruits in his Platoon 71 that he "was concerned over the lack of discipline and spirit . . . and that he was going to march it into the swamp that night."

The court of inquiry said the drill instructor told his recruits that "those who couldn't swim would drown and those who could would be eaten by sharks."

McKeon led the platoon into Ribbon Creek along an "irregular course," the court said, and in about 10 minutes the "formation was disorganized and scattered . . . and many members of the platoon were then standing in water up to shoulder depth."

It was at this point, the record said, that "several recruits entered or were swept into water over their heads and a general panic ensued." McKeon immediately attempted rescue operations, the court said, but these were "disorganized and mostly ineffective."

Admits Partial Responsibility

Pate disclosed the findings and his own actions at a public hearing of the House Armed Services committee.

Pate frankly admitted that he and the Marine Corps must bear at least partial responsibility for a recruit training system which had permitted the incident to occur.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga) of the Armed Services committee said it was the first time in his 42 years in Congress that a military commander "has had the courage to state in public session that a service could be deficient in some respect."

300 Girls Attend State Hi-Tri Convention Held at Bonnell Gym

A group of 300 high school girls spent an enjoyable day Saturday at the State Hi-Tri convention which was held in Bonnell gymnasium at the Harrisburg Township high school.

The girls were welcomed by a council from the Harrisburg Hi-Tri. Registration was from 9 to 9:30 a. m. during which time the girls were served Cokes.

The morning program was as follows: Prelude, Dawan Martin, Harrisburg; call to order, Sally Woolsey, state president, Du Quoin; hymn "Holy, Holy, Holy"; devotions, Marion Hi-Tri; welcome, Nancy Fulkerson, Harrisburg, and Eltis Henson, principal; address by W. J. Goreham of Sidell.

Following announcements and reports the morning session was closed with a "mixer" during which time the girls became acquainted.

At 12:15 a luncheon was held at Wesley Center.

During the afternoon new state officers were elected and installed. The out-going state officers received lovely corsages in appreciation of their services throughout the year. Nancy Fulkerson, a senior at HTHS, is the retiring vice-president.

Thirteen senior girls from the state received certificates for having attended all state conferences since their freshmen years. Nancy and Judy Farrar, also of Harrisburg, were among those receiving merits.

Entertainment in the afternoon included a play entitled "Mind Over Matter" directed by Judy Farrar. The characters were Collette Wavering, Pat Hodson, Peggy Strader and Marsha Pierson.

The theme of the conference was "Key to Success." The stage was centered with two large golden keys and on either side were two ladders. Across the rungs of the ladders were written the five keys to success: character, friendship, courtesy, pleasure and success.

The local Hi-Tri is sponsored by Mrs. Helen Dunn and Miss Bernice Patterson. Newly elected local Hi-Tri officers are Mary Jane Gibbons, president; Janice Gidcumb, vice president; Leanna Cummins, secretary; and Joan Priest, treasurer. These four girls helped to plan the affair with the outgoing officers: Nancy Fulkerson, president; Avah Phillips, vice-president; Judy Farrar, secretary, and Dawan Martin, treasurer.

Tison and Hall Putting New Beauty Stone into Building

WE HAVE A HUMMIN' industry down on Route 45 in the east part of town and ol' Timmo went down yesterday afternoon to look over the latest development.

It was the Tison and Hall concrete products company where I went and both Mr. Tison and Mr. Hall were their in person when I arrived.

I saw their latest contribution to the construction world; and I saw the contribution being put into a building.

The new item at Tison and Hall is called beauty stone, and it is bound to have an impact on construction work.

Beauty stone originated in the southwest and was brought to this area by the Harrisburg concern. Already six houses have been built out of Tison and Hall's beauty stone in Evansville and another house will start soon. Two, including Mr. Tison's own home, have used it in Eldorado and a carload of it will be shipped right away to Roanoke, Va.

* * *

Beauty stone has been manufactured at Tison and Hall since February. It's a concrete product made with special new machinery the company bought and is now being made in ten different colors which remain fast. It's made in block form for easy handling and breaks off into six slabs of stone when bumped just right.

Tison and Hall, which really is expanding from the time they started with their mixer and a small office building, is using this beauty stone in an office building and warehouse they are building to the northeast of their present location.

This building, 40 by 90 feet, will have beauty stone of Texas Tan on the outside front and part of the sides, with regular concrete block, some laid stock bond and some laid running bond, for the

Army Tests Rocket Foxhole Digger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army told a House Appropriations subcommittee in testimony released today that it has tested a rocket-propelled foxhole digger.

The "digger" consists of a lightweight cardboard container which is placed on the ground. A rocket is inserted in the top and then fired directly into the ground. The Army said the resulting explosion makes a hole large enough for a full gun crew.

Body of Senator Barkley Is Returned to Capital

Eisenhower and Truman Lead Nation Mourning

President Says He is 'Shocked' by Barkley's Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and former President Truman today led the nation in mourning the death of Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

Mr. Eisenhower said in a statement issued shortly after he learned of Barkley's death that he was "shocked" by Barkley's "sudden" passing.

"As vice president of the United States, a member of Congress and senator from Kentucky, Mr. Barkley had a long and distinguished record of public service for the people of his state and country," the President said. "The nation is poorer by this tragic event.

"Mrs. Eisenhower and I join with all other Americans in extending our heart-felt sympathy to his family."

The President also sent a personal message of condolence to Mrs. Barkley.

At Huron, S. D., where he made a speech Monday night, Mr. Truman expressed his sadness. It was the Truman-Barkley team that carried the Democrats through their finest hour in the surprise 1948 presidential election victory.

"I'm just as sorry as I can be to hear of Senator Barkley's passing," Mr. Truman said. "He was one of the finest men I ever knew.

Differences Laid Aside

"He was a great congressman, a great senator and one of the greatest vice presidents of this nation, and a citizen that the United States can always be proud of."

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who insisted three years ago that only Barkley be known as "the Veep," joined other Republicans and Democrats in laying aside all party differences to mourn the death of one of the best-liked men in the capital.

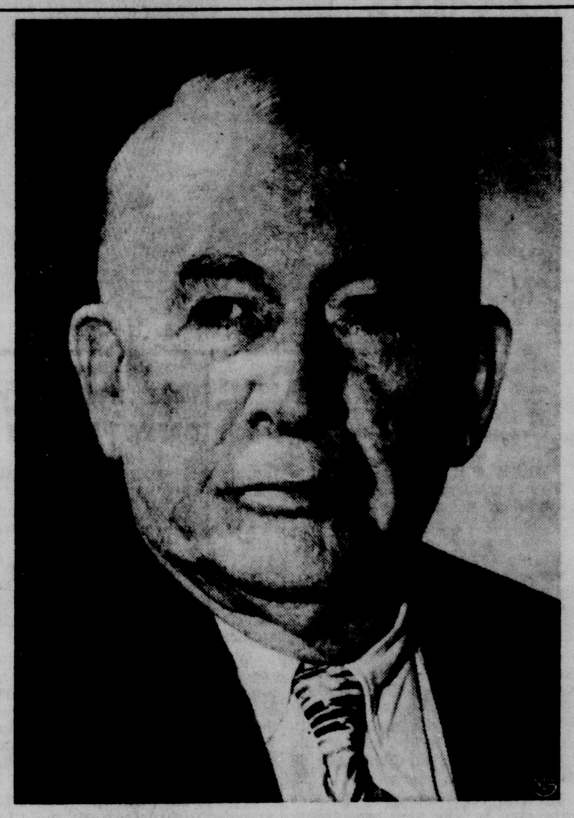

"Senator Barkley was loved and respected by all those who were privileged to know him, regardless of their political affiliations," Nixon said. "He was, and will always remain, in the hearts of the American people, the one and only Veep."

Former Vice President John Nance Garner called him "one of the great statesmen of our generation."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, said Barkley's death "will be felt greatly by the country . . . He was a fine man."

Adlai E. Stevenson, who won the 1952 Democratic nomination that Barkley had sought, said "No American of his time has been more respected and more beloved."

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), who like the President is a heart attack victim, called Barkley's death "a deep personal shock."

Congress Halts Business Out of Respect for Lawmaker

WASHINGTON (AP)—The body of Sen. Alben W. Barkley was returned today to this sorrowing capital where the witty and beloved "Veep" spent more than 40 years in public service.

The 78-year-old former vice president collapsed and died late Monday while delivering a political speech at Lexington, Va. His body, in a plain casket covered with a grey shroud, was brought here by ambulance.

It will lie in state at a funeral home until funeral services are held at 11 a. m. EDT Wednesday in the Foundry Methodist Church.

Congress, in which Barkley served both as a senator and a representative from Kentucky, suspended its legislative business as a gesture of respect for the veteran lawmaker.

The House adjourned after adopting a formal resolution of mourning. Speaker Sam Rayburn, who came to Congress with Barkley in 1913, eulogized him as "a statesman of the first order . . . a great leader of men."

"God Bless His Memory"

"I may not see his life again," Rayburn said, his voice choked. "God bless his memory. God comfort his loved ones. God comfort me."

The senate was already in recess until Thursday, but three scheduled Senate committee meetings were cancelled. Officials said the Senate probably will meet briefly Thursday to eulogize Barkley and then adjourn until Monday in his honor.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the Senate, will conduct the funeral service. A special train then will bear Barkley's body and an official congressional delegation to Paducah, Ky., the "Veep's" hometown.

Barkley will be buried Friday in the Mount Kenton Cemetery.

Barkley's widow and one of his daughters, Mrs. Max O. Truitt, went to the funeral home this morning, before the body arrived, to make final arrangements for the services.

Russia Displays New Type Jet Fighter in Annual May Day Show

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union displayed a new type Mikoyan jet fighter today in the annual May Day show of Russian armed might.

The swift jets zoomed over Red Square while military and naval units paraded on the ground below Russia's assembled leaders and a crowd of hundreds of thousands.

It was Russia's traditionally biggest annual display of arms and Marshal Georgi Zhukov, the Soviet defense minister, sounded its keynote in an address warning against "complacency" while "imperialist circles continue the policy of the cold war."

"Under thse circumstances," Zhukov said, "the peoples must not relax their vigilance and determination in the struggle for peace, against the threat of a new war."

Higher Speed Jets

Zhukov's speech was regarded as relatively mild, and so was the military part of the parade. It apparently disclosed no new equipment.

Forty-eight of the new type jets whistled overhead so fast that witnesses on the ground were unable to describe them closely. Observers said they may be an improved model of the MIG15.

Western intelligence reports already had knowledge of existence of a later MIG17 model which first appeared in 1953 or 1954. It was believed to be slimmer with greater backsweep to the wings and higher speed. Moscow Radio's mention of the "new Mikoyan fighter" was believed to mean this was a later plane than the MIG17.

Youngsters ran to the Lenin-Stalin mausoleum and presented garlands of flowers to the government leaders led by Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist Party leader Nikita S. Khrushchev, who returned Monday from their state visit to Britain.

No Stalin Pictures

Zhukov as defense minister took the salute of parading troops and delivered the major May Day address.

After welcoming the Soviet armed forces and the "respected foreign guests," Zhukov referred to the "new success" achieved by the Soviet people through "following the path indicated by Lenin."

For the first time security guards allowed Western correspondents and guests to take pictures of the military parade.

The famous Red Square was decorated with hundred foot red banners and slogans extolling the Communist Party and the Soviet people. Twenty-five-foot portraits of Karl Marx and V. I. Lenin hung from the facade of the G. U. M. Department Store opposite the mausoleum.

There were no pictures of Josef Stalin.

Pope Urges Christian Workers To Join Battle for Peace, Order

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Pius XII, warning against the "deceitful mirages" of communism, urged Christian workers today to join a battle to bring peace and order to terrified mankind.

The 80-year-old pontiff addressed the workers of the world in a May Day speech from St. Peter's Basilica marking the first celebration of the Roman Catholic feast day of St. Joseph the Workman.

His words were spoken directly to tens of thousands of workers in St. Peter's Square and by radio to an international meeting of workers in Milan in a move timed with Communist celebrations of May Day.

"The church—as we have repeated a thousand times—detests war and its horrors, particularly now when the warlike means of destruction of all property and all civilization are menacing terrified mankind.

"She wishes for and defends peace — internal peace between sons of the same country, external peace between members of the great human family.

"But she needs strong and determined cooperators in this tremendous undertaking . . .

"Put yourselves in the front ranks of those healthy forces of the social body, you pledge yourselves to the battle of peace for the common safety of nations."

Vatican officials said 16,000 persons were assembled in St. Peter's Basilica, with another 16,000 outside in St. Peter's Square.

In Milan's Dumomo Cathedral Square, another 200,000 persons gathered to hear the Pope's words and to watch the cermony on television sets scattered on trucks throughout the area.

Let's Call a Spade a Spade

Editorial By Bruce Biossat

When it comes to getting money from the government, Americans often display a fondness for the indirect method. This is true in many fields, not least in agriculture.

There is a great reluctance to call a subsidy by its real name. Some U. S. industries are subsidized by tariffs which keep out or reduce foreign competition. Farmers are subsidized by the so-called price support program.

For some two decades now, it has been the declared policy of the U. S. government to give farmers either this type of protection or some other. We are committed to the idea that farmers must have a fair share in any economic prosperity the nation may enjoy.

That notion underlies the theory of "parity prices" at the heart of the support program. Parity is simply a level of prices at which farmers are considered able to buy the products of the rest of the economy—on a par with other consumers.

* * *

Under the support program, if market prices for farm products fall below this parity level, the government moves in to assure the farmer enough return to make up most of the difference. It never has closed the whole gap; that is, there never have been support prices at 100 per cent of parity. Ninety per cent has been the top.

How this system works is not important here. What is noteworthy is that as it operates it constitutes a subsidy. The farmer is being paid a good share of the difference between what market prices may bring him and what he is believed to need to compete fairly with other American consumers.

Since we are determined that the farmer shall have this aid, it might seem reasonable to many people that it be treated simply as the subsidy it is. The indirect devices of the parity-price support program are among the most complex ever conceived by legislative man. They have had effects not foreseen by their ingenious inventors. Not least of these are the staggering crop surpluses which now hang over the whole farm economy and multiply the farmer's problems.

* * *

Some who attempt to speak for the farmer fear the "subsidy" label, seeing it identified with "socialism." But this country has been extending a helping financial hand to one group or another through most of its history, and it is far from going socialist today.

Furthermore, if a subsidy openly tagged is socialism, then one handed out by indirect methods can only be "concealed socialism."

It is hard to understand why fears of calling a subsidy a subsidy should be allowed to dominate, when resort to the indirect approach can produce such unhappy and widespread side effects as have flowed from the farm price support system.

DREW PEARSON Says: Vice President Nixon's Close Confidant Should Have Easy Time Before Senate Committee; Murray Chotiner Had More To Do With Nixon's Success Than Any Other Person; Chotiner Has Collected Some "Influence" Fees.

WASHINGTON. — When the Senate Investigating committee tackles Vice President Nixon's close friend and confidant tomorrow, they will have to be extremely smart. For Chotiner is not only an attorney; he is one of the shrewdest public relations men on the West Coast.

He not only managed Nixon's campaign for the vice presidency, but his campaign for the Senate in 1950, helped his first campaign for Congress in 1946, and conceived the brilliantly executed TV report to the nation in which Nixon broke down criticism of his $18,000 personal expense fund.

Cross-examining Chotiner will be Sen. John McClellan of Arkansas who can be a penetrating prober when he wants to be, but who has latent sympathies for the Nixon-GOP side. Strongly backstopping Chotiner — if he needs it — will be such potent Nixon pals as Sens. Joseph McCarthy and Karl Mundt of South Dakota. Chotiner ought to come away unscathed.

CHOTINER'S INFLUENCE

This column and various Senate committees have exposed others who collected legal or lobbying fees because of influence, from John Maragon up. So here are some of the interesting things in the life of Murray Chotiner which the senators may want to investigate.

First, let's see whether he really has influence. Here is the record:

On Jan. 4, 1953, Chotiner gave a check for $1,500 to the Statler hotel in Washington as down payment for 25 rooms for Nixon's inaugural guests.

On Oct. 6, 1953, Chotiner began sending out letters to obtain a realignment of the Republican party in California, to take it away from Senator Knowland and Governor Warren, then about to become Chief Justice, and put it under Nixon and Governor Knight.

Sept. 5, 1955, Chotiner was made associate director of the "Len Hall campaign school" by the Republican National committee. He lectured on campaign tactics to 48 GOP state chairmen before they went to Denver to ask Ike to run again.

Chotiner began spending more time in Washington. He became one of the most trusted advisers of the GOP National committee. Bob Humphreys, director of campaign activities for the committee, described Chotiner's work as a "smash hit." He was considered an expert on ways to have "good associated with Republicans" and "bad associated with Democrats."

Chotiner's closeness to Nixon was clearly demonstrated at that time by the fact that he wrote several hundred letters to newspapers and radio stations demanding corrections regarding news pertaining to Nixon. In these letters he stated that he was writing "on behalf of Vice President Nixon."

CHOTINER'S LAW PRACTICE

Now let's see what the Chotiner record was in taking various law cases where influence helped.

First and for a long time, Chotiner and his brother have been the chief attorneys hired by gamblers and bookmakers in Los Angeles. Judging from the number of such cases on the docket of the Superior Court of Los Angeles county, this was Chotiner's chief practice before he came to Washington. The court record between 1949 and June 1, 1952, includes 221 cases and covers 42 pages.

Chotiner and his brother, judging by the court record, were extremely successful in getting the Los Angeles underworld off with light fines or suspended sentences.

Second, Chotiner broke into the headlines in a Federal Trade Commission case when Abner L. Lipscomb of that commission ruled that the National Research Co., a debt-tracing firm, had no right to deceive debtors in order to help clients collect overdue bills.

The National Research Co. was using what looked like the Seal of the United States, plus such words as "the United States" and "claims office" in such way as to make people who owed money believe they were getting letters from the U. S. government.

It developed that Chotiner was not only attorney for the company but was helping direct the affairs of the company and answering mail.

NO CONTACT WITH DICK

When this hit the headlines, however, Chotiner quickly moved to extricate Nixon from any political association with him.

"I have had no contact with the Vice President whatsoever since the day he was elected, so far as any contact with his office is concerned," said Nixon's close friend.

Apparently Chotiner forgot the $1,500 he paid the Statler hotel for Nixon's inaugural guests and the letters written various newspapers on behalf of Nixon. One set of letters representing himself as Nixon's attorney was dated Dec. 22, 1954, another dated May 26, 1955. The last batch of several hundred letters was written in March, 1956.

Note—William J. Mawhinney of the Better Business Bureau stated in January that he had written the Washington address of the National Research Co., only to have his letters answered by Chotiner from California asking who Mawhinney was and why he wanted information. No letters, according to Mawhinney, were answered by the local office of the debt-collecting firm in Washington. The answers always came from California.

Hoover Warns Of Mushrooming Crime in U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover warned today that the U. S. crime rate has mushroomed three times faster than the population since 1950. Hoover also reported that youngsters under 18 committed almost half of the major crimes reported last year by 1,500 city police forces; 48 per cent of the juvenile offenders were under 15.

The juvenile crime rate, Hoover said, showed a 11.4 per cent increase in arrests of persons under 18.

Hoover's annual crime report said major crimes dropped in 1955 for the first time in eight years. But the decrease, it said, was an "almost negligible," .002 per cent.

Since 1950, the report said the percentage rise in crime has been almost three times that of the nation's population. Crime is up 26 per cent against a 9 per cent increase in population.

Hoover said that while major crimes decreased last year by less than 1 per cent, the estimated total of crimes exceeded two million for the fourth straight year.

Cadillac

Spring Tonic That Lasts All Year!

His heart is light and his eyes are bright this morning—for he's greeting the spring at the wheel of a 1956 Cadillac.

Springtime comes and springtime goes, of course—but the thrill of his Cadillac will go on and on—month after month and year after year.

And what a thrill it is!

First, there's the sheer satisfaction of owning the "Standard of the World"—the undisputed leader in all that makes a motor car a joy to possess and to utilize.

Then there's the thrill of driving it—with its wonderfully smooth, quiet, powerful engine—its easy, positive steering—and its big, soft, authoritative brakes.

There is the contentment that comes with Cadillac's amazing economy.

The first cost of a Cadillac is surprisingly modest—upkeep, over the years, is unbelievably low—and operating costs rival those of any car.

And now, in all modesty, may we speak of one other satisfaction he enjoys?

We believe that, throughout the years of his ownership, he will be as pleased with us, as his dealer, as he is with the wonderful car itself. It is our constant endeavor to treat our customers as they are entitled to be treated as owners of the world's most distinguished car.

Why not come in some day quite soon—take a demonstration drive at the wheel—and arrange to greet the spring in a Cadillac of your own?

We think you'll be delighted to learn how much your present car is worth in trade—and to find how quickly you can obtain delivery on the Cadillac of your choice.

Dallas Housewife Gives Birth To Quad Girls

DALLAS, Tex. (UP) — The 25-year-old wife of an aircraft worker gave birth to quadruplet girls Monday night and early today.

Mrs. George A. Hunter and the babies were all reported "doing well" at daybreak in Methodist Hospital.

The 42-year-old father, who works at the Chance Vought aircraft plant, said he was "pretty excited" at the multiple births.

Mrs. Hunter's first reaction to the news was, "Oh no! I want two boys."

The Hunters have one other child, a girl less than 18 months old.

The babies were delivered in the space of 21 minutes, from 11:44 p. m. Monday to 12:05 a. m. today by Dr. W. A. Shoecraft.

The first born weighed 3 pounds; the second, born at 11:47 p. m., weighed 2 pounds, 11½ ounces; the third, born at 11:57 p. m., weighed 3 pounds 3 ounces, and the fourth, born eight minutes later, was not weighed but was smaller than any of the others.

All were placed in individual incubators.

"We were told it would be three babies," Hunter said. "We weren't looking for four. I'm pretty excited. I think I'll take the day off."

Return Body of Sen. Barkley to Capital

manila bronze casket to replace the plain casket in which the body was brought from Lexington. Mrs. Barkley stipulated that the public be allowed to visit the funeral home and to attend Wednesday's services.

Barkley, 78, collapsed and died at about 6:15 p. m. EDT before a stunned audience of 1,700 at a quadrennial mock national convention at Washington and Lee University.

Wins Long Applause

He had just won long applause with one of the oratorical strokes for which he was famous, by this comment on his latest role of again being Kentucky's junior senator:

"I am willing to be a junior . . . I would rather be a servant in the House of the Lord than to sit in the seats of the mighty."

Barkley after a pause fell to the floor behind the microphone. The outburst of clapping suddenly stilled.

His wife, the former Mrs. Carleton Hadley, who was sitting in the front row rushed to the stage and was one of the first to reach him.

Dr. Robert Munger, Lexington heart specialist, reached the scene after a rescue squad had tried to revive Barkley with oxygen, and pronounced him dead of a heart attack.

The Kentucky senator died while once again swinging into a campaign battle on behalf of his party, but Democrats and Republicans alike, stunned by Barkley's death, immediately poured in their eulogies.

"A Great Congressman"

Former President Truman, under whom Barkley gained his permanent title of "Veep" praised him as "a great congressman, a great senator and one of the greatest vice presidents of this nation."

President Eisenhower quickly forgot party differences to praise Barkley for his "long and distinguished record of public service . . ."

Messages flooded in from the leadership of both political parties.

Mrs. Barkley, who became the Veep's second wife in a publicized romance in 1949, stayed only long enough to see that preliminary arrangements were made with a funeral home here.

Dr. Munger, who pronounced Barkley dead at 6:25 p. m. said he apparently had died instantly of either ventricular fibrillation or coronary occlusion.

Born in Log House

Barkley was born in a log house in Graves County, Ky., on Nov. 24, 1877, the eldest of seven children of John Wilson and Electa Smith Barkley. He worked his way through Marvin College at Clinton, Ky., Emory College in Georgia and the University of Virginia Law School.

As a young lawyer at Paducah he married Dorothy Bowers and they had three children. In 1913, he began the first of his 36 years in Congress, 11 of them in the Senate.

In all but two of his years in the Senate Barkley was majority leader, and figured in the historic events of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations.

After a victory as Mr. Truman's running mate in 1949 the then widowed grandfather nenlivened the Washington social scene with his courtship of the widow Hadley, then 38, of St. Louis.

After his term as vice president Barkley once again was unable to resist the lure of politics but was spurned as a presidential aspirant in 1952. He was again elected to the Senate in 1954.

MRS. BARKLEY SMILES THROUGH TEARS

WASHINGTON (UP)—Rep. Burr P. Harrison (D-Va) told the House today how he tried to comfort Mrs. Alben W. Barkley Monday night a few minutes after her husband collapsed and died during a speech.

Harrison, who was on the speaker's platform with Barkley, said he told the tearful widow that "he's up there sitting at the right hand of the Lord right now."

"But she smiled through her tears and replied, 'No, he's probably still telling St. Peter his story'."

GOP Leaders Say Ike Will Accept New Farm Proposal

By United Press

President Eisenhower's legislative leaders said today he probably will accept a new farm bill that omits his requested advance payments for the soil bank.

Rep. Charles A. Halleck (R-Ind), a top GOP House leader, told newsmen after a White House conference that absence of the pre-payment feature "would not be a reason to veto the bill."

Rep. Leslie C. Arends (Ill), House GOP whip, agreed. He said the President would not veto the bill "just because of that."

The Democrats prepared to rush their new bill through the House this week. They planned to start debate late Wednesday and push for a final vote on Thursday.

The Republicans said they will try to put the advance soil bank payments in the bill. But Halleck told one reporter that the House probably will refuse to do so.

Find No Shakespeare Documents in Tomb

CHISLEHURST, England (UP) — Literary theorists who opened a 300-year-old tomb here today in search of proof that Shakespeare's plays were written by Christopher Marlowe found nothing but a pile of sand.

The tomb of Sir Thomas Walsingham in Scudbury Chapel contained neither documents nor visible vestiges of the three bodies believed to be interred there.

The searchers, forbidden by the home office to examine any human remains they might find, do not plan to look any further. They had hoped to find Shakespeare manuscripts in Marlowe's handwriting, or some other evidence that he wrote the plays.

Consider Berets For Army GIs

WASHINGTON (UP) — Now the Army is thinking about putting berets on its mud-slogging GIs.

The Army has "under study" a proposal to outfit all troops in berets of the new army green, Army quartermaster officers told a House Appropriations subcommittee in testimony made public today.

Lt. Col. R. T. Morgan, clothing project officer, said the study had been ordered by Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, and would be presented to the Army uniform board.

The fife and drum corps of the Revolutionary army marked the first recognition of music as an army morale factor.

Du Quoin Plant Fires 17 of 222 Striking Workers

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP) — The Du Quoin Packing Co. has fired 17 of its 222 striking production workers.
Among the workers fired were four officers of Local 156 of the United Packinghouse Workers Union and two members of the union's negotiating committee. Local union president Kenneth Hawk was one of the workers fired.
The company said it fired the workers for "aiding, abetting, ratifying, approving and-or participating in a strike in violation of the National Labor Relations Act as amended."
The company has filed a brief with the National Labor Relations Board, charging the union with unfair labor practices.
The company said the union failed to comply with a federal law provision for notification of federal and state labor mediation officials 30 days before a strike is called.
The packinghouse workers walked out to back up demands for pay increases ranging from 23 to 87 cents an hour. The last company offer reported was 15 cents an hour for all production workers.

Marion Physician Is Victimized

MARION, Ill. (AP) — A physician was victimized Monday by a woman pickpocket who masqueraded as a patient.
A well-dressed woman entered the office of Dr. H. L. Summers and complained of a severe headache. When Summers recommended she go home and take a couple of aspirins, the woman threw herself at him.
After a struggle, the doctor pushed her away and she said "Well, if you won't give me any medicine, I'll go."
She did, taking along $75 that had been in Summers' pocket.

Lisa Kyriakides came to a halt before the window of Anton's Dress Shop. Anton, the pseudo-Frenchman, who guaranteed his high-paying clientele the latest fashions from Paris.

She drew a deep breath, tightened her lips to hold off the tears, then opened the door to Anton's and stepped into the deeply carpeted reception room.

Anton, dressed in stripes and cutaway, met her and bowed from the waist in recognition. She followed him past the ornate showroom where soft music accompanied a model parading before a customer. They turned into a long corridor past fitting and sewing rooms and into his office.

"Kindly be seated," Anton said in his high-pitched voice. "They will be here shortly." He bowed again and departed.

It started the day after the German entrance into Athens. Manolis Kyrfakides, her husband and the father of her two children, had showed his true colors.

Lisa's father, a small factory owner, had defiantly refused to do business with the Germans. He had destroyed many patents the enemy sought.

This was what Manolis had been waiting for. Waiting since the day he had married Lisa. Within a week, Manolis gained control of the factory as the prize for collaboration with the Germans. It was Manolis' information that sent Lisa's father to Averof Prison. The old man lived only a few weeks, refusing to divulge the patents.

At first, Manolis tried to deny his part. But Lisa knew the truth. Long ago she had learned his pattern of greed and ambition.

She took the children and left him and went into hiding in an apartment in Athens. Then she became one of the first to join the new Underground movement.

Inside a week, she was picked up by the Gestapo.

Her capture had been so swift that the Underground was unaware of it. They were unaware she was being forced to report to Zervos and Heilser. Zervos was the one who had concocted the charming scheme of holding her children as hostages.

At first she thought of suicide. But suicide would have endangered the lives of her children. Manolis was bound to outsmart himself sooner or later and he was too weak to raise a finger to save them. She could not sentence her own sons to death!

But she could not go on playing both sides. Avoiding Heilser's questions. Lying to them. Up to now she had not been followed, but how long would that continue?

And what if her own people learned of her dual role and she died at their hands as a traitor?

There was a way out. . . . Manolis' way out.

The black staff car stopped in front of Anton's Dress Shop. Heilser and Zervos stepped out flanked by their bodyguards.

Lisa stood before them like a frozen statue.

"Well!" he snorted sharply.

"There is nothing to report. I have not been contacted."

"Now, let's stop this lying, Lisa," Heilser said.

"I have told you before, I am contacted each time by a person who uses a false name. I can never tell where or when I will be reached or for what purpose. I have not been contacted since you released me," she lied. "Perhaps they know I had been taken into custody."

"Do you wish us to bring the head of one of your sons on a plate the next visit?" Zervos barked.

This did not receive the reaction Zervos hoped for. The woman showed no trace of fear. "I intend to keep my bargain as long as you keep yours."

The pair were stopped cold in the face of Lisa's courage and calm.

"Wait outside," Heilser ordered Zervos.

The German paced back and forth, then seated himself at Anton's desk and gave her his most charming smile. Lisa remained frozen.

"My dear," Heilser cooed, "you are making things extremely difficult for yourself and without reason. I would like to believe your story, Lisa, sincerely, I would. I have not put guards on you—I said I wouldn't, didn't I?"

She did not answer.

"Lisa—dear. You know I'm trying to help you—protect you."

"I ask nothing. We made a bargain. I shall report to you as long as I'm allowed to see my children."

Heilser sighed and feigned sympathey. "I hope they stay healthy."

Eleftheria buried her face in her hands and wept. "I will never see you again," she cried.

Mike knelt by her chair. "Eleftheria," he said softly. "You nursed me when I was sick—you risked your life for me—what can I say? What can I tell you?"

She flung her arms around his neck and drew his head against her bosom. "Take me with you! Take me with you!"

Mike pulled her arms loose. He stood up and turned his back. "Please don't make it any more difficult than it is—please."

"You don't love me," she said.

He turned slowly and faced her and shook his head, no.

It was quiet for a long time.

The girl walked to the large open fireplace. Her back stiffened and she held her head high. "I shall return to Dernica. There is a boy there who wants to marry me. He has wanted to marry me since we were . . ." Her voice faltered and tears streamed down her cheeks.

Lisa sat quietly as the scene unfolded. The barefooted peasant girl who watched from the doorway was obviously in love.

Chicago to Begin Water Fluoridation Despite Protests

CHICAGO (AP)— Fluoridation of Chicago's water supply was slated to begin today despite protests the step will "poison" people.

Mayor Richard J. Daley was scheduled to turn a valve to start the addition of fluorides to 1,450,000 South Side residents. Fluoridation of the rest of Chicago's water is expected to begin by July 1.

The chemical is added at a rate of one part to one million parts of water to help cut down tooth decay among children. The step is backed by most dental and medical authorities.

Bridged Connection

There are 39 concrete bridges, from 20 yards to seven miles long, which connect the thousands of tiny keys between Miami and Key West, Florida.

Bull Dogs Beat Carrier Mills, 8-1, In Baseball Tilt

The Harrisburg Bull Dogs, behind the 6-hit pitching of Molinarolo, beat Carrier Mills in a high school baseball game Monday afternoon 8-1. The game was played at Carrier Mills.

Carrier Mills' only tally crossed the plate in the second frame.

Molinarolo, in going the distance, allowed six hits, struck out seven, walked three and hit a batsman. His fielders committed five errors. Hassett was the catcher.

DOWNSTATE FISHERMAN'S GUIDE:

Fair Crappie Catches at Horseshoe Lake; Exceptional Bass at Grassy

By PETE BROWN

(From reports by the Southern Illinois Cooperative Fisheries Research Laboratory and the Illinois Department of Conservation)

* * *

Some fair strings of crappie turned up at Horseshoe lake boat docks during the week, but each one represented over two man-hours of fishing. The fish, all of which were caught on minnows, measured between six inches and a foot. Windy weather continues to stir up everything but fish in the lake.

Lake Murphysboro largemouth and crappie catches have been moderate, although the bluegill catch is improving. A three-hour 26-fish haul by three fishermen is one of the year's better endeavors at Lake Murphysboro. Using worms and minnows the trio boated 23 medium-sized bluegill, one largemouth, one crappie and one redear sunfish.

Although another blustery weekend slowed things down at Crab Orchard, largemouth began running again Wednesday and Thursday (April 25-26). Water at both Crab Orchard and Little Grassy was clearing by mid-week. Four bass going 22 inches were brought into the Playport Dock April 21, but most catches averaged three pounds. The Helldiver, Divebomber and Johnson Silver Minnow remain the favorite bait, and will continue to be until after spawning season.

Meanwhile—back at Little Grassy—bass fishing was definitely off, at least in comparison to what it had been. Crappie fishing is fair.

One outstanding catch kept Grassy's spring record impressive, however. Charles Belenski, of Dowell, fished straight through the week-end (April 19-22) and caught six largemouth weighing a total of 48 and one-quarter pounds. The largest one went eight and three quarters, the smallest seven and one quarter. And all the bass were caught on minnows.

* * *

One of the likeliest explanations of the exceptional bass catches (in terms of weight) at Little Grassy Lake this season probably lies in the "drawdown" of a year ago. The water level was considerably reduced in order to facilitate shoreline clearance work at the various camps around the lake.

The last time the lake was drawn down (in 1950) a similar big-bass catch was recorded the following season. The forage fish are concentrated in a deeper, smaller area where bass can get at them.

Commercial permits for carp and buffalo fishing have been issued at Little Grassy, but the management effects are deemed "insignificant." A permit to catch snapping turtles was also issued, and although the individual removed 2,500 pounds of turtle, the breed is not considered a problem at the lake.

Little Grassy odds and ends include the fact that it covers 1,000 acres; has a maximum length of a fraction over four miles and a maximum width of one mile; is 77 feet deep within 100-150 yards of the spillway and averages 27 feet in depth. Besides largemouth, there is a good black and white crappie population, but not much bluegill.

* * *

A few anglers find it hard to believe, but there are some bountiful schools of bluegill in Crab Orchard Lake. Best spots for them are in the open water of the many coves north of Route 13 near Cambria. Best method for catching them is very slow (and very quiet) trolling with light equipment, light leaders, small hooks, and worms, cockroaches or a flyrod size Daredevil for bait. Fish 10 to 15 feet deep to locate the school.

QUICK CASTS . . .

Oscar Libbra of Benld pulled a six pound, 11 ounce largemouth out of Carlinville Lake April 12 to lead the local fishing derby. . . Jules P. DeLattre, who last year caught a 33-pound catfish at Pana reservoir, hauled an eight pound drum out of same last week. He is a retired photographer living at the reservoir. . . Four Marion men picked up a 55-pound mudcat on a trotline at Horseshoe Lake. . . Members of the Urbana Sportsmen's Club added 300 pounds of gamefish to their newly completed lake west of Mahomet. . . The Illinois Natural History Survey drained Ridge Lake at Fox Ridge State Park as another part of its experimental management program there. The population of big bass, bluegill, channel catfish and warmouth looked fine. Fishermen wanting to get at them this summer should get permit from Dr. George Bennett, Head, Aquatic Biology Section, Illinois Natural History Survey at Urbana. Season begins June 1, with hours from 6 to 10 a. m. and 3 to 8 p. m. . . Illinois fishermen who suspect they might have a record fish are asked to submit evidence, in the form of an affidavit or newspaper photographs and clippings to "Outdoors in Illinois," State Conservation Department, Springfield. This magazine is planning to establish a list of record-size fish caught on hook-and-line in Illinois waters.

Cardinals Blank Braves, 2-0. Advance to First Place First Time Since May 1, '51

By United Press

Just six little putouts — but enough to put the St. Louis Cardinals in first place today for the first time in exactly five years.

That's the story so far this season for 41-year old Ellis (Old Grand Dad) Kinder, who's been on hand for the last putout in no less than three of the rejuvenated Redbirds' six triumphs. Ellis did it again Monday, retiring the last two batters in St. Louis' 2-0 win over the Milwaukee Braves.

The victory, their fourth over southpaw pitching in five games, moved the Cardinals into first place in the National league, 31 percentage points ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers and marks the first time they've occupied the circuit's top rung since May 1, 1951. It was also the Cardinals' second straight shutout and gave Redbird pitchers a string of 19 1-3 consecutive scoreless innings.

Retires Six Batters

In all, Kinder has retired six batters this season but that seemingly puny total adds up to three victories in the books of Manager Fred Hutchinson and General Manager Frank Lane. For Kinder came out of the bullpen to retire the last batter in Vinegar Bend Mizell's 4-2 opening day win over the Cincinnati Redlegs and hurled the full ninth inning in a 5-3 verdict over the Redlegs on April 24.

With his spotless 2-3 of an inning wrapup Monday, Ellis has a season's record of two innings pitched, two hits allowed, no earned or unearned runs yielded and three victories saved for the Cardinals.

Tom Poholsky, 26-year old right-hander, shut out the Braves for eight innings Monday but was yanked when he walked the first batter in the ninth. Jackie Collum retired one batter and then Hutchinson turned over the game to Kinder.

In the process, the Cardinals defeated their No. 1 "jinx pitcher," Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, who entered the game with a 43-22 lifetime edge over the Redbirds. The 35-year old southpaw had a no-hitter for 6 2-3 innings but then Ken Boyer, Rip Repulski and Wally Moon singled in succession to put the Cardinals ahead, 1-0. The Cardinals added another run in the ninth against Lou Sleater to clinch matters.

Intersectional Clashes

The game—first played by the Braves in eight days and the Cardinals in five because of bad weather in the West—was the only one scheduled in the majors but the races will be spiced up a bit today with the first intersectional clashes of the season on tap.

In the National league, the eastern teams go West with Brooklyn at Cincinnati, New York at Chicago, Philadelphia at Milwaukee and Pittsburgh at St. Louis. In the American league, West goes East, with Detroit at New York, Kansas City at Boston, Chicago at Baltimore and Cleveland at Washington.

So far, neither the world champion Dodgers nor the A.L. champion Yankees have been able to get away from the field—as it was feared they might do early—and there is hope now that both races may be close.

Whitney Tests One-Two Punch In Derby Trial

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP) — C. V. Whitney tested his strong Kentucky Derby one-two punch at Churchill Downs today when Head Man started in an 11-horse field in the 19th running of the -10,000 added Derby trial and Career Boy tried an injured foot in a mile and one-quarter workout.

The size of the starting field in Saturday's 82nd and richest running of the $125,000 added Kentucky Derby apparently depended upon the outcome of each tryout. Officials at Churchill Downs still listed 24 horses as possible starters for Saturday's race.

Needles remained the favorite even though the headstrong colt has refused to work out on each of the four occasions when Trainer Hugh Fontaine sent him onto the track. Fontaine said he would not try anymore.

Many of the trainers, however, watched the Whitney colts perform before deciding whether or not their colts will run in America's premier horse race. For Head Man and Career Boy are rated the strongest threats to upset Needles, the stretch running son of Ponder who earned the role of favorite with come-from-behind victories in the Flamingo Stakes and Florida Derby.

Senator Barkley Ranked Close to Lincoln as a Master Story Teller

WASHINGTON (AP)—Alben Barkley ranked close to Abraham Lincoln as a master story-teller and political wit.

Perhaps his classic tale was one Barkley called "The True Story of the Ungrateful Constituent." It involved a farmer for whom Barkley had done many favors in Washington.

During a crucial campaign, Barkley suddenly heard that the farmer was going to vote against him. Amazed, he approached the farmer and recited all the things he had done in the farmer's behalf over numerous years.

"Yeah," the farmer sneered, "but what have you done for me lately?"

Once, when questioned as to why the House had a foreign affairs committee but the Senate had a foreign relations committee, Barkley replied:

"When I was in the House, I was told that the difference was the senators were too old to have affairs. They only have relations."

On another occasion the Senate had become so confused in dealing with a piece of complicated legislation to extend price controls that members were not sure whether they were voting for or against the administration.

Barkley said the situation reminded him of the spinster who traded in her double bed for twin beds.

"Every night I look under the bed to see if a man is there," he quoted her as saying. "But with twin beds, my chances are doubled."

When the wedding reception was over after his marriage to the present Mrs. Barkley in 1949, the bride ruefully observed that she hated to leave and go out "and face the mess again"—meaning a mob of well-wishers.

"That's no mess," Barkley told her. "That's the American people."

Barkley was fond of quoting a letter supposedly addressed to Dorothy Dix.

"Dear Miss Dix," it said, "I am in love with a beautiful girl of fine character and I want to marry her. But there are some things I am ashamed of. She knows about my sister who is a prostitute, my brother who is in the penitentiary and my uncle who is in an insane asylum. But she doesn't know about my two cousins who are Republicans.

"Should I tell her?"

Thinking It Over

By Robert Dieffenbacher, D.D.
Written for NEA Service

There is something awe-inspiring about nature's grotesque formations of rock and soil in many secluded areas of America. This is especially true "off season" when few visitors venture from the beaten path or from the comfort of their homes.

Standing silently, and with bowed head, a man recently surveyed the mammoth natural monuments of the Bad Lands of South Dakota. He lifted his head toward the crimson setting sun and his eyes swept the horizon from the darkly-silhouetted, inhuman shapes in the west to the tinted figures at the east.

"No one," he said, "could even glimpse this quiet scene of natural carving and not feel the presence of God in all His glory."

And his comment was true. No human thought could dream of such sculptured stone. No human hand could fasion such a vast symphony of shapes. No man-made machine could combine the construction and the form and color into such a bas-relief.

We need not go to distant points to observe the handiwork of the Creator. All around us are evidences of a workman who is more artistic, more powerful and more capable than any single living man or group of men.

As spring takes on its color and gives nature its new garb, we should take time out from our daily activities to see and observe the colorful evidence of the presence of the Being who is higher than we are.

Farmers Eligible For Special FHA Operating Loans

Farmers in Illinois are eligible for credit assistance for their farm operating expenses for the 1956 crop year with Special Operating Loans through the Farmers Home Administration according to E. Ronald Coon, County Supervisor at Harrisburg, Illinois.

These loans are to supplement the regular source of credit and not to replace it, Mr. Coon said. Loans are generally of an annual nature and may be used to pay the normal recurring costs of operation on the farm during the crop year. Applicants must be certified as eligible by the local County Committee of Farmers Home Administration.

Special operating loans are secured by a lien on the operator's crop and bear interest at the rate of three per cent.

In addition to this special loan, Farmers Home Administration carries on its regular program, making other types of loans both chattel and real estate to assist farm operators and owners to carry out successful farm operations.

Mr. Coon maintains his office in Harrisburg on the third floor of the Harrisburg National Bank building.

Primary Votes in Alabama, Dist. Of Columbia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Voters in Alabama and the District of Columbia cast ballots in presidential primaries today.

The district balloting provided a contest between delegate slates pledged to Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) in the Democratic primary. But only six convention votes were involved.

In Alabama, a state with 26 convention votes, delegates were unpledged and neither Stevenson nor Kefauver's name was on the ballot. But about one half of the delegates have said they favor Stevenson.

Other political news:

The death of Sen. Alben W. Barkley (D-Ky) started speculation immediately that Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky might resign and take the Senate seat himself by appointment. Or he might appoint someone else temporarily and run for the seat at a special election in November.

Ohio Governor Criticized

Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler swung at Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, fellow Democrat and possible dark horse presidential candidate. Butler at a news conference in Delaware, Ohio, accused Lausche of failing to help the Democratic party. He said he expects President Eisenhower to carry Ohio in the November election.

Butler later told students at Ohio Wesleyan university his party "will not make any concessions to the South" on civil rights this year. He said: "We will support the integration decision of the Supreme Court."

Attorneys Claim Cairo Police Gave Liquor to Client

MOUND CITY, Ill. (AP) — Two lawyers charged today that Cairo police gave their client liquor to get him to confess he took part in a holdup attempt that resulted in a murder.

Attorneys Joe Crain of Mound City and John Holland of Cairo filed a motion in Pulaski County Circuit Court asking that a murder indictment against Norman Halliday Jr., 33, Cairo, be quashed.

Halliday is under indictment in the fatal shooting of Olmsted tavern owner Clate Adams Feb. 23. Alfred Reahm, 37, pleaded guilty to shooting Adams and now is in prison.

Halliday's lawyers said Cairo police obtained a confession in which Halliday allegedly admitted he accompanied Reahm through unlawful methods after they arrested Halliday there.

They said police gave Halliday liquor even though they knew it would aggravate mental condition he had as a result of war service.

The lawyers also alleged that State's Atty. Loren Boyd had promised to file a lesser charge against Halliday, if he cooperated with authorities, and that the grand jury which indicted Halliday was not legally chosen.

Boyd said the prosecution would file an answer to the motion late today.

Singing Program at Dorrisville to Aid Liberty Church Building Fund

A singing program by three quartets to aid the Liberty church building fund will be held at 8 p. m. Saturday, May 5, in the Dorrisville school gymnasium.

Quartets that are donating their services are the Harmony Echoes of West Frankfort, the Pathfinder quartet of Carrier Mills and the Dorrisville quartet.

The church is one of the oldest in southern Illinois and its building burned last October. Members are seeking enough funds to construct a new church building.

Refreshments will be sold by the women of the church during an intermission in the program.

A church spokesman said the church is having a good response to its efforts to secure an ample building fund.

'That's the Way I Hope to Go,' Truman Says

HURON, S. D. (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman said "that's the way I hope to go" when he learned of Sen. Alben W. Barkley's death.

Both Mr. Truman and his ex-running mate and vice president were busy on the campaign trail Monday, although the two veteran Democrats were in their 70s.

The ex-President was riding in an open car at a political parade when he heard the news. Persons close to him said he appeared "shaken."

Later, Mr. Truman said "he died working in the harness. That's the way I hope to go."

"I'm just as sorry as I can be," he said. "He was a great man, a great congressman, a great senator, and one of the greatest of vice presidents. His is a great loss to the country. I feel very badly about it."

Miss Iva Jenkins Receives 25-Year Pin From Telephone Company

Miss Iva Jenkins, chief operator in the Harrisburg telephone office, today completed twenty-five years of service with the telephone company. She was presented with a 25-year pin, which carries one diamond, by Manager Millard Lynch.

All of Miss Jenkins' service with the telephone company has been in Harrisburg in the offices in the Harrisburg National Bank building. She started working as an operator and was promoted to the position of chief operator 16 years ago.

When Miss Jenkins first started with the company there were approximately 1,300 telephones in Harrisburg. Now there are 4,300.

The General Telephone company has a plan whereby pins are awarded employees for each five years of service and after 25 years the pin includes a diamond. A diamond is added for each additional five years, Lynch stated.

Expect Cuts in Foreign Aid, Sen. George Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Walter F. George warned the Eisenhower administration today to expect cuts in its foreign aid request despite a "wide area of agreement" reached at an unusual White House conference Monday.

The Georgia Democrat, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters that when Congress completes action on the foreign aid measure, "It won't be anything like $4.6 billion or $4.9 billion"—the figures the administration requested for actual expenditure and authorization in fiscal 1957.

President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles met with George and three other top congressional foreign policy figures at the White House late Monday. Dulles earlier urged the Senate committee to approve the $4.9 billion administration request as part of a "national insurance policy" against the "still serious" threat of Communism.

George and Chairman James P. Richards (D-SC) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee reported a "wide area of agreement" on the foreign aid issue.

But they said they did not specifically take up the President's proposal for long-term economic aid. That is a major point of disagreement between Congress and the administration.
